

Pathwork Lecture 92: Repressed Needs – Relinquishing Blind Needs – Primary and Secondary Reactions

1996 Edition, Original Given November 10, 1961

This lecture is given in an expanded poetic format, what I call a Devotional Format of the lecture, and in that sense this is my interpretation of the intent of the lecture. I may have interpreted portions differently from you, and I ask you to ponder the words for your own interpretation. I did this Devotional Format so I can take the words into my heart, phrase by phrase, much as I would in reading poetry – that is, devotionally.

The blessings to me in developing this format have been truly profound, and my wish is that this Devotional Format will be a blessing to others. I invite you to slowly read and ponder this format of the text – with an open heart to experience the Guide’s Presence and Love emerging from among the words such that the wisdom comes to LIVE you.

For clarity: The original text is in bold and italicized. [My adds of commentary/clarification/interpretation are in brackets, italicized, and not bolded.] To learn more of my Devotional Format and see the lectures I have done in this way, go to <https://www.garyvollbracht.com/pathwork-lectures/pathwork-lectures-devotional-format/>

It [i.e., understanding and awareness of the significance of your needs] will show you that in connection with

- repressed needs,

and along with

- your unawareness of them [i.e., your unawareness of repressed needs],

you will find all the

- twists and
- unresolved conflicts

- within your soul,

and therefore [the twists and unresolved conflicts]

- in your life.

So this phase of your work carries us a great deal

- further and
- deeper

than

- the images

with

- their wrong conclusions.

05

Basically, there are two kinds of needs:

- the instinctual needs, and
- those [needs] of the idealized self-image.

Instinctual needs derive from the two basic instincts of

- self-preservation and
- procreation.

These [instinctual] needs can be [both]

- healthy and
- normal.

However, if [these instinctual needs are] repressed, they will turn into potent forces of destruction.

	It is not necessarily only the <ul style="list-style-type: none">• false and• imaginary needs that are destructive. A need which in itself is <ul style="list-style-type: none">• healthy and• normal can be destructive when awareness of it [i.e., when awareness of the healthy need] is <ul style="list-style-type: none">• repressed or• non-existent.
06	Among the needs of the idealized self are, for instance, <ul style="list-style-type: none">• the need for glory,• the need to triumph,• the need to satisfy <ul style="list-style-type: none">• vanity or• pride. In order to understand this particular process [regarding supporting the idealized self image], you have to review how the idealized self-image came into existence.

The two kinds of needs [i.e., real and healthy instinctual needs and false and unhealthy needs that support the idealized self-image]

often

- intermingle and
- fuse,

so that you are no longer aware – even unconsciously, if I may use this seeming paradox – of what is

- a healthy and legitimate need
- and*
- what is not.

They [i.e., the two kinds of needs]

- intertwine and
- overlap.

Not only do the

- superimposed,
 - unhealthy, and
 - artificially created
- needs*

of the idealized self create

guilt feelings,

but just as often the

- healthy,
 - normal, and
 - legitimate
- needs*

of every healthy human being cause

equally strong guilt feelings.

This is due

- to the influence of the environment,
- to mass images, and
- to mass misconceptions.

- Your ignorance and
- the ignorance of
 - educators and
 - parentshave created a distorted view that induces you
 - to repress and
 - to subduewhat should be encouraged in a constructive way.

This overall ignorance [of you, educators, and parents] fails to recognize that which is

- intrinsically human [i.e., your human instinctual needs], and even

- necessary.

08

Once you
free yourself of

- resistance and
- repression

[of your natural and healthy instinctual needs], it will be a great relief to recognize that often what you felt

- most guilty about

is not only

- normal and
- healthy,

but is in fact

- most creative.

Because of these misconceptions [that make you feel guilty about your healthy instinctual needs, including your need to manifest your most creative aspects], you have deliberately starved
such needs.

*That [i.e., starving your instinctual and healthy needs] cannot make them disappear;
instead,
by a process of displacement, they [i.e., these real, healthy instinctual needs, including your real, healthy, and normal need to manifest your most creative aspects] reappear in a destructive form.*

*You then,
unconsciously,
try to gratify their [i.e., gratify these real, healthy, instinctual needs'] insistent claims in a manner that cannot do justice to their real
demands.*

The driving force to still the hunger is misdirected.

- Real,
- *legitimate
needs
can be satisfied only with full awareness
so that*
 - understandingcan be combined with
 - the instinctual forces.

09

*Your misconception about
the meeting of real needs produces*

- repression [of real, healthy instinctual needs]

and, subsequently,

- a defense mechanism [against them] which is very destructive.

Some of you, my friends, have begun to get a glimpse of it [i.e., a glimpse of this process in you in which your misconception about meeting real needs results in repression of real needs and, subsequently, a destructive defense mechanism].

You may ask,
"What does the defense mechanism have to do with this [i.e., with this repression of real instinctual needs]?"

The answer is that repressed needs
cause you to act contrary to your own best interests as you try to gratify them [i.e., as you try to gratify your repressed needs in ways that can never satisfy them and hence in ways that ultimately cannot be in your own best interests].

Therefore
your attempts [to satisfy these real and yet repressed needs in false and misguided ways] produce experiences that starve these [very real and legitimate instinctual] needs even more.

Since this [i.e., since starving rather than fulfilling these very real and legitimate needs] hurts, you will produce a defense against [feeling] such hurts which will prevent the fulfillment [of these very real instinctual needs, the fulfillment] you crave even more.

Since you continue
to repress your needs, the entire process [described here – misconceptions that make you feel guilty about your normal and healthy instinctual needs; not wanting guilt, your repression of these real needs; pain of not fulfilling these now-repressed needs; the defenses against feeling this pain of unfulfillment; these defenses further preventing fulfillment, and on and on – a vicious cycle] has to be
• unrolled and • brought into awareness.

Then [when this vicious cycle has been brought into awareness] you will be able to develop a more adequate behavior-pattern that promises to bring about the result you wish;
that is,
• happiness and • fulfillment.

You may then discover that your defense mechanism has come into being
• not only because you fear the risks of • life,
• love, and
• involvement, • but also because you believe, mistakenly, that certain [even healthy instinctual]
needs
are • forbidden and
• wrong, and thus defend against [having] these needs in yourself.

11

I am not talking only about what is already commonly known in this respect: sexual needs.
It goes a lot further.

Humanity has by now learned that sexual needs
do not have to be repressed.

They [i.e., sexual needs] are not, in themselves, • harmful and
• sinful.

	But humanity has not as yet realized that many other needs also exist that have been treated in the same repressive manner as sexual needs. These other [healthy and normal instinctual] needs, reaching into a deeper layer of human consciousness must also be <ul style="list-style-type: none">• brought out,• acknowledged, and• properly re-directed, as has already been done to a degree with the sexual needs.
12	As already stated, if your needs are repressed, the urge for gratification becomes much stronger. This [i.e., this fact that a repressed need creates a stronger urge for gratification] is logical, because <ul style="list-style-type: none">• awareness of a need [rather than repression of it] and• clear knowledge of it will enable you to cope with it in the manner most appropriate under the particular circumstances. It [i.e., this awareness of a need] will enable you to make a choice: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• to relinquish one thing in order <ul style="list-style-type: none">• to eventually obtain what is more rewarding for you.

to relinquish indicates maturity.

Repression,
on the other hand, [in contrast to relinquishing, and instead] creating

- blind needs and
- their blind pursuit, makes it impossible to see what the [real] issues are.

Therefore [, not knowing the real issues,] you cannot act in your own best interest.

Where it may be necessary to relinquish [a need] in order to receive greater fulfillment [at some later time], you cannot do so [i.e., you cannot relinquish now] because you do not see the condition clearly.

The pressing need [for the fulfillment of a real and legitimate instinctual need] causes you to hold tight to that which you can get [now], even though it [i.e., that which you can get now] may be often utterly inadequate [for satisfying your real need].

13

Your blindness [to your real, long term, and legitimate instinctual needs] encourages the childish greed to reach for immediate fulfillment all along the line.

*If this [immediate fulfillment] proves impossible, the frustration
becomes unbearable,
and you*

- find yourself trapped,*
- caught*

in your own vicious circle of continuing to do what is against your best interest.

*Only
awareness of your [healthy, real, long-term, and legitimate instinctual] needs will enable you to tolerate temporary frustration.*

*You will be capable of relinquishing
the urgent pressure for immediate gratification if you keep in mind the farsighted knowledge that postponing the gratification serves the interests of your healthy needs, if not right now,
then at a future time.*

You make this choice freely, because you have the necessary awareness.

14

*If
awareness of your [real instinctual] needs is lacking
because an unconscious guilt prevails due to the belief that they [i.e., your real instinctual needs] are wrong, they freeze into a hard knot.*

In such a case [i.e., in the case when guilt about having needs freezes them into a knot] the pressure for gratification reaches such a pitch that it becomes impossible to stand frustration.

Inability to tolerate frustration is one of the marks of immaturity.

This

- lack of gratification
 - frustration
- combined with*
- then confirms that you are wrong in having the [real and legitimate instinctual] need.*

Awareness

is driven even more into hiding and that causes you to pursue gratification [of the real and legitimate instinctual need] compulsively.

Under

the accompanying self-castigation, the urgency becomes even more potent and therefore more difficult to handle.

15

However, paradoxically, awareness

- of one's real needs and
- of their legitimacy

makes it possible to pursue their gratification.

	In order to do so [i.e., in order to pursue the gratification of your true needs], frustration <ul style="list-style-type: none">• sometimes becomes necessary and• can be endured. • Unawareness and • repression, on the other hand, create such an urgency that the <ul style="list-style-type: none">• immature,• unconscious condition in which you cannot stand frustration prevails. [In this situation of unawareness and repression of your real needs where you cannot stand frustration] You cannot relinquish even the slightest immediate gratification, and thereby you sabotage the possibility of fulfilling your real needs.
16	Offhand, all this may be very difficult to understand, for no <ul style="list-style-type: none">• general rules and• regulations can be made. The process [I have described] can only be understood if and when you <ul style="list-style-type: none">• find it [i.e., find this process] within yourself, and• see how it [i.e., see how this process] manifests specifically in your case.

	As you allow yourself awareness <ul style="list-style-type: none">• of the raw needs,• of<ul style="list-style-type: none">• their significance,• their validity,• their desired goal, you can proceed to observe <ul style="list-style-type: none">• what you have done in the past to sabotage them [i.e., to sabotage your real needs];• how you have done so;• what defense mechanisms caused such sabotaging.
17	Eventually you will find one focal point deep within yourself, where you discover that you are <ul style="list-style-type: none">• locked and• enslaved in what is called, in your present-day human terminology, a neurotic situation. All neurosis <ul style="list-style-type: none">• is built<ul style="list-style-type: none">around a nucleusof repressed needs and• contains<ul style="list-style-type: none">the inabilityto give upcertain gratifications.

This [inability to give up certain gratifications] then causes the neurotic symptoms of

- helplessness,
- dependency,
- inability to make a choice, and of
- seeing only two equally dissatisfying alternatives [i.e., the two alternatives of having needs (of which you disapprove and that therefore make you feel guilty for having them, which is dissatisfying) on the one hand and the equally dissatisfying alternative of not gratifying your real needs on the other hand].

You are torn in half by this very condition.

If one part of you did not disapprove of these needs, you would not find it necessary to repress them.

As it is,

- one part of you says "no" to them [i.e., says "no" to even having what are in fact real and legitimate needs], and the more you say "no," [i.e., the more you say "no" to even having what are in fact real and legitimate needs,] the more urgent they [i.e., the more urgent these denied needs] become.

- The other part in you - battles against the "no," [i.e., battles against the denial of real and legitimate needs] and
 - battles against the world that does not offer gratification [of real and legitimate needs] gratuitously.

your own wholehearted determination can induce you to undertake the necessary actions that will finally bring a sufficient measure of fulfillment, even if not to the ideal extent of your childish fantasies.

However,
the actual fulfillment
will produce
much greater happiness, in spite of its lack of perfection, than the childish fantasies.

Such realism [of actual fulfillment] is a consequence of the

- strength and
- self-reliance

you have acquired on the way, and
of the

- knowledge

that your fulfillment is up to you
and not up to others.

That knowledge [that your fulfillment is up to you and not up to others] will more than compensate you for the difference between

- reality

and

- illusion.

18

To find that condition in you [in which you are torn apart by unmet needs and]
so far
you have not been able to relinquish takes time.
The time varies with each individual.

Again, no generalization
• can or • should be made.

That [generalization or general rule] would only • mislead you and
• tempt you to seek the solution [to your struggle with unmet needs] by an intellectual process, rather than allowing your emotions [related to your painful condition] to reach surface awareness,
thereby finding the answers within yourself.

Only by becoming aware of all this [i.e., becoming aware of all your emotions for this condition in which you have not been able to relinquish gratifications of needs] will you also find it possible to distinguish between the • natural,
• healthy needs [i.e., instinctual needs of self-preservation and procreation, including the need for warmth and love], and the • artificially created
needs
of the superimposed idealized self-image [such as need for glory, the need to triumph, or the need to satisfy vanity or pride; needs that you desperately cling to and refuse to relinquish].

Only as you learn to maturely go about fulfilling the
• healthy,
• natural
needs,
will you become capable of giving up the
• false needs [i.e., false needs required to meet the demands of your idealized self-image].

[However,]

Do not even attempt to forcefully stamp out these false needs [i.e., needs required to be met in order to hold up your idealized self-image – your false need for glory, or your need to satisfy your pride and vanity].

It would do no good [because you cannot stamp out needs, and satisfying false needs would still leave your real needs unsatisfied].

All you • can and • should do is to become aware of them [i.e., become aware of the false needs, needs that must be satisfied in order to meet the demands of your idealized self-image], while gradually learning to do what is • realistic and

• adequate to fulfill the real needs.

This [i.e., doing what is realistic and adequate to fulfill your real needs] in itself
will automatically cause
the false needs to disappear.

*Slowly,
their [i.e., your false needs'] intensity will diminish, and gradually
they [i.e., your false needs, the demands of your idealized self-image] will disappear altogether as real fulfillment [of your real needs of your true self] comes to you out of your own healthy*

- inner,
- and therefore also
- outer,
- activities.*

False needs, even if gratified occasionally, leave you

- empty and
- dissatisfied.

20

In this nucleus of

- division [between real and false needs],
- repression [of real needs], and therefore

- self-destructive activities and
- undesired results,

*you are caught
as in a trap, unable to make a constructive choice.*

- festering,
- twisted

condition prevails in the psyche leading to a host of further conflicts which finally manifest in an outer situation you cannot cope with.

[In this festering twisted condition – your state of division and repression of your needs,]

You cannot determine what you are really facing and make a choice.

You are driven.

*As [you are torn between alternatives that are] within [you], so without you see only two equally dissatisfying alternatives,
and you are torn between them.*

On the one hand,
you give in to the needs, and by

- submitting,
- appeasing, and
- complying

[in order to meet your false needs, regardless of the cost to your soul] you become

- most angry with and
- contemptuous of yourself [for giving away your real self to meet false needs].

On the other hand,

you [do not submit to or appease others to satisfy your false needs, but rather you] rebel against

this very necessity to satisfy your needs [i.e., you rebel against the very thought of having any needs of others at all].

Neither of these two alternatives [i.e., neither by relinquishing yourself by submitting in order to meet needs, nor by relinquishing having needs at all] will bring a constructive result.

You have not found the point of relinquishing [i.e., that which must be relinquished for you to proceed] in either [of these two alternatives] that would allow for the constructive end of eventually fulfilling your needs.

When this entire process [leading to being trapped between two unworkable alternatives of either relinquishing your true self by appeasing others to get false needs met or relinquishing having needs of others at all by denying the existence of needs] has reached

surface-awareness,
one of the most important steps on your road to freedom has been taken.

Once you understand how you
enslave yourself,
you will also become aware of your self-contempt.

you had shifted this self-contempt to the existence of the needs [that is, self-contempt for having any needs].

But you will find out, once all this reaches consciousness, that there is no reason to feel contempt for one's healthy
needs.

You will see that the real reason for self-contempt is your inner unwillingness to relinquish [your false needs].

And as you learn to do so [i.e., learn inwardly to relinquish your false needs], a new

- strength and
- self-respect

will evolve that will be a great experience for you.

	At the beginning it [i.e., this great experience of having new strength and self-respect from relinquishing your false needs] will only appear occasionally. But with each new victory [in relinquishing false needs] <ul style="list-style-type: none">• it [i.e., this great experience of having new strength and self-respect] will stay with you longer and• the relapses [into not relinquishing false needs] will become<ul style="list-style-type: none">• weaker and• less frequent.
22	Moreover, as you find the subtle point of relinquishing, you will no longer be a slave to your needs, because you are now conscious of them [i.e., conscious of your needs and can choose to relinquish false needs, or real needs, as appropriate rather than being a slave to having to fulfill them, and to fulfill them immediately]. Furthermore, you can go about finding the best way to bring fulfillment to yourself. The inability to relinquish [your false (or real) needs] is the most basic factor in your feelings of <ul style="list-style-type: none">• inferiority and• inadequacy.

trying to do justice to two mutually exclusive drives –
• [the drive] for
and
• *[the drive] against gratification of the needs – is largely a product of
due to the inability to relinquish [your false needs].*

The ability to relinquish [your false (or, if necessary your real) needs] will give you
• strength,
• self-confidence, and
• a healthy self-respect that nothing else could give you.

And just because this strength [which is a product of your ability to relinquish needs] develops within,
• you can first [choose to] give up [i.e., relinquish] the • false,
• distorted, • superimposed,
• artificial needs [i.e., the false needs that must be fulfilled to gratify your idealized self-image], • *and then [later, after relinquishing these false needs,] you can go about doing what is necessary, step by step,
to obtain gratification for your real needs.*

	But self-respect [that comes from your ability to relinquish your false needs rather than being enslaved and driven by your false needs] must be established first. Without it [i.e., without self-respect] you are <ul style="list-style-type: none">• locked and• blocked.
23	Beware of finding a quick answer as to what the point of relinquishing [i.e., needs that need to be relinquished] is. Do not take a particular surface desire and sacrifice it [i.e., relinquish this surface desire] in the mistaken idea that here [in this surface desire] you have found it [i.e., found your point of relinquishing]. This [relinquishing of a surface desire] • may be very misleading and [relinquishing of a surface desire] • may encourage • false self-sacrifice, • defeatism, and • self-destructiveness. You will find this point [of relinquishing, that is, you will find what has to be relinquished] only after reaching a great deal of awareness about the process. When it [i.e., when the point of relinquishing, that is, when that point of knowing what is to be relinquished] comes, you will feel so right about it. There will be no doubt in your mind.

Most of all, [when you reach that point of relinquishing, that point of knowing exactly what has to be relinquished]

there will be no sense

- of loss,
- of giving up something precious.

Neither will you feel especially virtuous [for relinquishing this something].

You will relinquish it in the full knowledge of

- what you are doing and
- why.

want to do so [i.e., you will want to relinquish this something] because you will fully understand that this [relinquishing] serves your own interest.

Only when such feelings [i.e., feelings that this relinquishing is so right for your soul] accompany the point of relinquishing [i.e., the point of knowing what to relinquish] have you truly found it.

Until then [i.e., until you have reached the point of relinquishing, the point of knowing what it is that has to be relinquished for the best interest of your soul],

you have to

plough along

- exploring your emotions,
- bringing repressed needs to the surface, and
- unrolling the inner process [including feeling your feelings at each step], while observing

the subsequent

outer

- actions and
- reactions.

When it comes to the subtleties of the human psyche, • misunderstandings and • misinterpretations are even more apt to occur than on the more superficial levels of human life.

Beware of the false sacrifice which can often be used as a substitute for the real relinquishing.

The latter [i.e., real relinquishing] is never a sacrifice.

It [i.e., real relinquishing] is intelligent expediency, arrived at through fully facing a real situation.

*If you
relinquish something that is not yours to begin with,
you do not sacrifice.*

*Hence [in real relinquishing] you will not be led into the dangerous illusion of relinquishing something that [in fact] could [healthily] be yours – and then feeling
• false self-satisfaction [false since you relinquished something that could healthily be yours, which action can never bring real self-satisfaction and self respect], as opposed to
• real self-respect [that comes when you do not relinquish something that could healthily and rightfully be yours].*

	The point of relinquishing simply means <ul style="list-style-type: none">• discovery of where your willpower has no jurisdiction,• adjusting to that which is,• while gathering your strength to do that which you can do. It [i.e., the point of relinquishing] means giving up an illusion to which you had clung out of your pressing unconscious [and ultimately false] needs.
25	Do not let it bother you if at the moment you are completely at sea when I talk about this point of relinquishing. The understanding [of the meaning of this point of relinquishing] will come, slowly but surely, as you proceed in this work [i.e., as you proceed with this pathwork]. Those who are not doing this work with the help of another person [i.e., with a helper] may indeed feel at a loss to understand even remotely what I am talking about.

This condition of
• repressed and
• mischaneled
needs,
with all the consequences that sap your • energy,
• strength, and
• self-respect,
influences your ability
• to relate and
• to react.

This [influence on your ability to relate and react when your needs are repressed and mischaneled]
is obvious, if you think about it.

For,
the more urgent your needs while you are unaware of them, • the blinder you must be, and
• the less capable of being
• alive and
• free in a real situation.

Therefore,
you cannot respond to the situation in an appropriate way.

Such inadequate response cannot fail to set negative chain reactions in motion.

27

In this connection, we may speak of

- primary and*
- secondary*

reactions.

*The healthier
a psyche is,
the more free it is of the neurotic condition just discussed.*

*Because,
the less
enslavement exists,
the more
one will be capable of having primary reactions.*

*That is,
you will react*

- originally and*
- spontaneously*

to

- another person or*
- situation*

you are not caught in the trap of your own
repressed needs
with the consequent negative condition.*

If [on the other hand, you are caught in the trap of your own repressed needs and therefore]

you are

- unable to stand frustration,
- unable to relinquish [unconscious false needs that support your idealized self-image],

dare not

- face an unwelcome reality and
- cope with it,

you cannot be spontaneous.

You dare not consult your intuitive impressions which are so valuable.

You are

- trapped,
- dependent,
- *waiting for clues,
and your*
 - responses and
 - reactionswill be secondary ones, based on your guesses of what the reactions of others toward you are.

Needless to say, [this effort serves to defend your idealized self image, and thus] this prohibits

- truth,
- spontaneity, and

	In a secondary reaction, you focus your <ul style="list-style-type: none">• inner,• often unconscious attention solely on responding to what you believe exists, not to what actually exists. In a primary reaction, free of the illusion of hoping to bring gratification for repressed needs, you are capable of seeing what actually is.
28	The <ul style="list-style-type: none">• more repressed, and therefore the• more urgent your natural [and healthy] needs are,• the more blind you will be, and• the more limited your outlook is bound to be. Therefore you will more likely misjudge people's reactions to you.

*For instance,
you may take it for granted that someone meant to*

- hurt or*
- reject*

when in reality no such intent existed.*

Unawareness of needs distorts reality.

Everything is exaggeratedly

- good*
or bad,
- favorable*
or unfavorable.

incapable*

- of properly dealing with the situation,*
- of evaluating people.*

only capable*

- of experiencing*
 - secondary,*
 - conditioned*

*responses,

- are unreliable and*
- will never give you*
a feeling of security.

Only the capacity to experience
• primary,
• original,
• direct responses
brings out
the • intuitive
• reliable picture based on solid ground.

It [i.e., this capacity to experience primary responses] derives
• from yourself,
• from your own freedom,
• from the ability to • face and
• cope with a situation, even if it is against your liking – thus making you capable of relinquishing your illusion [and the demands of your idealized self-image].

29

[On the other hand]
Secondary reactions derive from
• clinging to illusion and
• not daring to see what actually is.

*For example
if your need to be liked is so strong that you cannot face the possibility of not being liked,
then you are incapable
of*

- objectively and*
- freely*

*observing the situation,
of*

- finding out*

what it [i.e., what the situation] really is.

allow yourself to like the other person until you are sure you are liked.*

*If
a liking for you transpires, then you will like the other person.*

This is a secondary reaction.

Your liking the other person may be in truth, but it may also be based on considerations that have nothing to do with reality.

*If you are free enough to cope with not being liked,
you will react*

- spontaneously
to that person,*
- uninfluenced
by your need.*

Thus

you have

relinquished

for the sake of

the pressing need to be liked [which is a need associated with your idealized self-image].

Being in truth

you will be in a position to do what is necessary to fulfill your [true and real] need.

Either

your

• free and

• spontaneous

reactions

will produce

favorable circumstances for you, so that you will be liked,

or,

in your

• spontaneous

• primary reaction,

seeing the truth

you will perceive that

• approval and

• liking

by this particular person will yield you no gratification anyway,

and

you will be free to find a compatible person elsewhere.

	Whether this applies <ul style="list-style-type: none">• to a mate,• to friends, or• to general human contact, makes no difference. Perhaps with this example, simple as it is, you will get a better idea of the process I am describing here.
30	The ability to have primary reactions is of utmost importance. The inability to have them [i.e., inability to have primary reactions] comes from <ul style="list-style-type: none">• the repression of needs,• the clinging to illusion, and• the subsequent inability<ul style="list-style-type: none">• to relinquish the illusion and• to see the real situation. At the same time, the absence of primary reactions strengthens your enslavement. You become more and more dependent on others, and therefore you fear others.

that your dependency [on others] often hinges on completely illusory circumstances.

So you

- battle against something that does not exist and
- forfeit
the chance of fulfilling
your
 - good and
 - healthy
needs.

For that [i.e., for the chance of fulfilling your good and healthy needs], the

- freedom and
- strength
of developing primary reactions
are a necessary prerequisite.

This has to be tackled from both ends [i.e., on one end, giving up the battle against what, in the end, are nothing but illusions and false needs that lead you to respond with secondary reactions of manipulating others, and, on the other end, achieving the freedom and strength of developing primary reactions].

31

By bringing

your repressed

- emotions and
- needs

more and more into awareness,

you will uncover

- your persistent clinging to
 - illusion and
 - false hope,
- your reluctance
 - to face reality, or
 - to relinquish a desired illusory goal [connected with maintaining your idealized self-image].

*This process will free you
to develop

By observing the fact that you respond

- only conditionally [i.e., based upon how you think others will respond] and
- not originally [i.e., not relating to the real situation at hand], you will finally become capable of daring to react

- unconditionally [i.e., irrespective of how others might respond],
- originally [i.e., relating to the real situation at hand], *and thus produce
primary reactions.*

This will help you to

- face reality and
- relinquish illusion, *so as to be free
to pursue the real fulfillment of your needs.*

32

I realize, my friends, that this is not an easy lecture.

For most of you it will take quite a while to truly assimilate it.

The faster you advance in your personal work on this path, the sooner this will happen.

And I am happy to observe that some of my friends are very close.

But even an inkling of understanding some of my words will be of great help.

	Once you encounter the inner condition I have described, with all its various aspects, you will experience more than simply another victory – it will be a great step forward. You will be close to resolving a <ul style="list-style-type: none">• sick,• distorted aspect of your soul that has brought you much unnecessary <ul style="list-style-type: none">• misery and• frustration.
33	Are there any questions now? QUESTION: How do you determine which is an artificial [and therefore unreal and false] need and which is a natural [real and healthy] need?
34	ANSWER: Let us suppose you discover a need to gratify your vanity. You know perfectly well this is not a life necessity.

Or let us suppose you discover a need to triumph over others.

One can very well live without that.

However,

such discovery

- cannot and*
- should not* be used to

- moralize [i.e., declare as evil] and*
- force the need away.*

This would only lead to further repression.

*Find out
why*

these needs exist.

You are bound to discover that a

- real and*
 - healthy*
- need*

has been starved

and the artificial one has taken its place.

The fact that certain needs are false

should not be accepted merely because I say so.

	The best way to determine <ul style="list-style-type: none">• the real from <ul style="list-style-type: none">• the false is to consider what the fulfillment of the need brings to <ul style="list-style-type: none">• you and• others.
35	The fulfillment of a false need brings a <ul style="list-style-type: none">• shallow,• temporary, and• short-lived gratification, often <ul style="list-style-type: none">• at the expense of• another person, or• at the expense of a more urgent need of yours. On the other hand, the fulfillment of a real need produces something constructive for everyone concerned. Your gratification [of a real need] will also be constructive for others, and it [i.e., your gratification of a real need] will not hamper other important aspects of your own personality. It [i.e., your gratification of a real need] will be the outcome of growth and will produce further growth, in addition to <ul style="list-style-type: none">• happiness and• fulfillment.

*You will discover that if the awareness of an in itself
healthy
need
has been repressed, some unhealthy factors
must have become attached to it.*

*This then causes the healthy need
to*

- get out of hand and
- become so intense that it is impossible
 - to face reality,
 - to cope with frustration,
 - to relinquish an illusion connected to it [i.e., relinquish an illusion connected to the healthy need].

*As you examine all these factors
within yourself,
you cannot help but become very much aware of*

- which needs are
 - constructive and
 - healthy, and
- which are
 - not.

37

QUESTION:
What about a strong need for harmony?

ANSWER:
*In itself
harmony is a healthy need.*

*But if it [i.e., if the need for harmony] becomes so strong that for the sake of harmony you forfeit
your*

- equally healthy and*
- legitimate*

need for

- self-assertion,*
- independence,*
- success,*
- happiness,*
- fulfillment –*

all of which require a certain amount of healthy fighting spirit – then there is something wrong that is most harmful for you.

You cling to the need for harmony, thus violating another essential part of your being, resulting in

- repression,*
- discontent,*
- anxiety,*
- a sense of failure, and*
- self-contempt.*

This is often projected onto others.

As long as

- *the need for harmony
does not interfere with other needs, and*
- *you are capable of occasionally relinquishing
the need for harmony
in order to gratify the other needs, everything is fine.*

you

can be the judge as to whether or not this is so.

*In your further self-finding,
you are bound to determine this – and then go on from there.*

38

QUESTION:

- When you touch upon these deep roots,
 - when you are able to recognize
 - what causes this complete twist in your psyche and
 - how it manifests in many areas,
- and then this area becomes very rampant,
you become ill
and you fight to survive this [illness].*

How do you combat the severe reactions [i.e., including illness] when you really get to these twists?

39

ANSWER:

When there is

- such a strong reaction [i.e., a reaction that even leads to illness],
- such a negative experience, something in you still fights against giving it up [i.e., fights against giving up that in you that is causing this complete twist in your psyche leading to severe reactions, even illness].

This must mean that

- a part of you still believes that its existence [i.e., believes that the existence of that condition in you that is causing this complete twist in your psyche] provides you with some
 - advantage, or
 - protection.

Instead of forcing it [i.e., forcing this condition causing this twist in your psyche] away, rather set out to find

- in what respect you believe an advantage exists for you in maintaining the twisted condition, and
- in what way you believe, in some part of your being, that its absence will be a disadvantage of some sort.

• Your battle,

• your severe reaction [even illness], is partly due to trying to force it away [i.e., due to trying to force away that condition which is causing this twist in your psyche leading to severe reaction and illness]

without understanding the irrational belief of

• advantage [this condition brings by being there] versus

• disadvantage [that would occur if that condition were not there].

such understanding [of advantages of its presence and disadvantages of its absence]
is lacking,
you must experience
extreme anxiety, because the twisted condition has a function
in your*

- erroneous,*
- unconscious*

belief.

Set about finding it [i.e., set about finding the function your condition holds in your erroneous, unconscious belief system], and your battle will cease.

40

Because you ignore this [task of finding out the function your condition has in your erroneous, unconscious belief system], you are temporarily unable to change.

This [inability to change] makes you even more impatient with yourself.

You want to speed yourself on in order to free yourself [from this twisted condition], yet you cannot do so without experiencing extreme discomfort.

This impatience at the delay engages you in a battle with yourself which heightens the fear of giving up a precious "defense."

41

The impatience is caused to a large degree by the unconscious misconception that you have to be perfect in order to experience

- happiness and
- fulfillment.

But this is not true [i.e., you do not have to be perfect to experience fulfillment], as some of my friends are beginning to find out.

this misconception [that you have to be perfect to be happy and fulfilled] you become quite frantic when you*

- have discovered a distortion [which makes you imperfect] and
- are not yet able to let go of it

some further understanding is still missing.*

In this frantic state it is even more difficult to discover the imagined disadvantage [that would result if you did not have this distorted condition, and] that makes you [therefore] hold on to the [distorted] condition in question.

42

QUESTION:

When you begin to realize • this deep frustration, • this deep aggression you have,
which is caused by the neurosis,
you become ill
before you are aware on a conscious level.

You escape into not facing that thing [i.e. not facing that distorted condition] in you which you feel destroys your whole structure.

Once you do recognize it [i.e., once you do recognize that distorted condition], it does go away to some degree, but then something else even deeper
comes up,
and you escape once more into this same illness.

This is my problem.
How do you break this pattern of escaping into illness?

43

ANSWER:

You mentioned that something even deeper comes up.

In this instance, it [i.e., that which is even deeper that comes up] is the answer of why you battle against giving up • the sick,
• the erroneous
solution – whether it is
• illness or • anything else
that offers escape.

*As I said before,
the imagined advantage of the false solution [i.e., the imagined advantage of the distorted condition] pushes to the surface, but the personality is afraid of facing it [i.e., afraid of facing this situation that there is an imagined advantage to the distorted condition that prevents the personality from giving it up].*

*Thus,
the same process of overcoming resistance [i.e., resistance to relinquishing this distorted condition] has to be gone through again.*

44

*In this process [of unraveling this repeating negative manifestation in your life], it often appears that one finds the same elements
over and over again.*

*This is the spiral movement
of*

- evolution and
- development.

As you proceed [with your pathwork], you will become aware of your

- escape mechanism and
- resistance
 - at the moment it manifests, while previously you found it

- only in retrospect [long after its actual manifestation].

Such synchronization [between the manifestation of your escape mechanisms and your awareness of your escape mechanisms] is the only indication of true progress.

45	The negative manifestations do not just vanish after having been discovered [only] once [however]. They [i.e., the negative manifestations] will reappear again and again, as you observe them at work, [but] with shorter and shorter intervals between <ul style="list-style-type: none">• occurrence and <ul style="list-style-type: none">• discovery, until the two [i.e., until the occurrence and the discovery of the negative manifestation] <ul style="list-style-type: none">• synchronize and• finally vanish. This is the spiral that becomes narrower and narrower, until it finally ends at one point.
46	Ignorance of this [repeating spiral] process often causes distress because you may believe you have relapsed [again and again] and this makes you <ul style="list-style-type: none">• more impatient,• more frantic and• hopeless.

understanding what you can expect [in this spiral nature of growth] will enable you

- to relax,
- to further observe,

answers [that are] still hidden will come to the fore.

The answers [you get along the way]

- will make it not only easier to narrow the gap between
 - the wrong reactions
that derive from the negative condition
- and
 - its [i.e., the negative condition's] subsequent manifestations,
- but will lead to finally giving up
the
 - twisted,
 - damaging
defense mechanism.

Do you understand?

47

QUESTION:
Yes,
but it just seems so endless.

ANSWER:
No,
it is not endless.

The spiral movement
becomes

- smaller and
- narrower,

as I just said.

finally there comes a point when a change occurs within,
almost as though by itself.

new reaction-pattern
becomes noticeable [a new reaction-pattern] which you started almost unknowingly, as it were.

This is the result of long struggle,
but if you
• do not let up and • go again and again through the seemingly discouraging repetitions,
each time
finding the same [patterns] anew, you will finally experience
this
• automatic, • spontaneous,
reaction.

It [i.e., this new reaction] is never a • forced and • deliberate thing.

If it [i.e., if this new reaction] is [a forced and deliberate thing], it is not genuine.

48	QUESTION: What happens when you have a recognition that you can't be satisfied with [being] second best, while knowing this to be <ul style="list-style-type: none">• immature and• unrealistic. But I can't feel different. It is impossible.
49	ANSWER: In this case, too, there is an underlying "reason" missing. You have to accept that this distortion [of not being able to be only second best instead of best] <ul style="list-style-type: none">• spoils things for you,• bringing you advantages. The more you <ul style="list-style-type: none">• observe and• understand this [i.e., observe and understand that this distortion spoils things for you], the easier it will be to find that you maintain it [i.e., you maintain the need to not be second best] because the child in you believes it [i.e., believes that being the very best] will provide you with more happiness.

	Only calm observation of <ul style="list-style-type: none">• what is true,• what is really more advantageous and• what is not [i.e., is not advantageous but rather is actually disadvantageous], will finally enable you<ul style="list-style-type: none">• to relinquish [the need to be the very best in order to be satisfied],• to change [i.e., to change in such a way that you can be second best or less, and still be fully satisfied]. This change [in what you need in order to be satisfied], too, will come as if by itself [i.e., this change will come automatically as a byproduct of discovering and observing the unconscious beliefs of your psyche and seeing which of those beliefs are true and which are not]. [Mere] Observation of this [distorted] process [that goes on in your psyche], understanding of why the psyche retains it [i.e., understanding why the psyche retains this distorted process due to unconscious false beliefs], will produce results. [Conversely,] Battling it [i.e., directly battling the behavior of your psyche that does not allow you to be fully satisfied unless you are the very best] forcefully will not [produce results].
50	QUESTION: Besides the psychological approach, is it not true that<ul style="list-style-type: none">• prayer and• turning to God, asking for help, is of great assistance to us?

ANSWER:

psychological approach is actually prayer in action.

If you really analyze what happens here, you will find that as you

- acknowledge and
- understand

all distortions – without self-moralizing [i.e., without judging yourself as evil] – you do the best to purify yourself.

As discussed in a few recent lectures, the so-called psychological approach is not in contradiction to the spiritual one.

Of course,
prayer

- is of help and
- is recommended.

But I have to give you more than advocate prayer.

have to do more than merely pray for help.

observe your attitude in prayer.

This is a very

- deep and
- subtle

thing.

pray and [in your prayer]
find the hidden attitude that you expect God
to do it for you, then your approach [to prayer]
is not only

- destructive,

but it also

- indicates a more deeply rooted wrong attitude
about
 - life and
 - your role in it [i.e., a wrong attitude about your role in life].

[Conversely,]

If you pray for help, but with the full

- intent and
- realization
 - that you have to face [yourself] and eventually change,
 - that you want to see the truth [no matter what the truth is and means]
 - that it depends on your
 - efforts and
 - willingness,

then prayer is very useful.

There is a fine distinction between such

- healthy and
- right
attitude

and
the idea that you should

- sit and
- wait for God to hand it to you.

The latter kind of prayer [i.e. sitting back and waiting for God to hand you results] will do no good whatsoever.

52	QUESTION: But the spiritual approach <ul style="list-style-type: none">• which you have taught and• which has added so much to the psychoanalytical approach – I was just wondering?
53	ANSWER: I fully discussed in a few recent lectures why it is <ul style="list-style-type: none">• healthy and• good for you, in this particular phase of your development, to put <ul style="list-style-type: none">• less stress [or emphasis] on the so-called spiritual, and• more [stress or emphasis] on the so-called psychological. For us [in the spirit world], it is all one and the same: they [i.e., the so-called spiritual and the so-called psychological] are merely different <ul style="list-style-type: none">• facets,• aspects,• approaches and• ways to the same end.

	Emphasis on the spiritual, if it is <ul style="list-style-type: none">• too long maintained and• at the expense of self-finding [i.e., expense of the psychological work], leads to<ul style="list-style-type: none">• escapism and• the false religion I discussed recently. It [i.e., overemphasis on the spiritual and avoiding the psychological work] leads to the wrong concept of God. If you reread that lecture, you will understand what I mean.
54	The idea that you neglect God by not discussing Him, and that focusing attention on the distortions so as to be able to change [i.e., focusing on the psychological work] would lead you away from spirituality, is utterly untrue, of course. Common sense will tell you so.

If such vague ideas [about God and spirituality and the psychological work] exist in you, it could be that you are afraid of

- finding and
- changing

what wants to remain hidden [and therefore remain unconscious].

It may be the expression of a childish hope that by speaking about

- God and
- the spirit world and
- its laws

[then] you will be able to change yourself without

- pain and
- discomfort.

This [i.e., changing yourself without pain, by avoiding the psychological work,] cannot be done, of course.

Further intellectual understanding about spiritual factors would not induce an inner change.

*But what you are all doing now on the path [i.e., on the honest self-facing, self-confrontational (without moralizing) path of pathwork] is bound to bring about an inner change
that brings you closer to true spirituality
than all the words you hear in the world, no matter how*

- true and
- beautiful

[the words and concepts may be].

Outer [and hence merely intellectual] belief is one thing;
the
inner capacity of living these beliefs is an altogether different proposition.

It takes a great deal more

- time,
- effort and
- pain

to achieve the latter [i.e., to achieve the inner capacity to live these beliefs].

Unfortunately, this aspect [i.e., the aspect of doing the inner psychological work necessary to build one's inner capacity to live one's outer intellectual beliefs about spiritual matters] is very much neglected by all religious

- denominations and
- societies.

They still deal with the mere thinking process, which often

- contradicts and
- conflicts with
 - the real inner life,
 - the life of the emotions.

*May you all,
each one of you,
find in tonight's lecture something that will bring a little more*
• light and
• help in your work, a little further
• incentive,
• hope,
• strength, and
• inner push,
• tension or
• anxiety, so as
• to free yourself from your own enslavement,
• to make yourself whole instead of divided.

*Go all in peace,
my dearest ones,
on this glorious road of*
• self-realization and • freedom.

*Be blessed,
be in God!*
