“Look at this beautiful world with the eyes that see the whole, that comprehend the Lord’s working behind all that is. Let your hearts be filled with the freshness of life’s healing power that flows from the Source that encompasses all that ever was created and ever will be created. This Source resides right in your own center, even when you are unable to connect with it or to experience its reality through your confusions and your momentary suffering. It is always there. (Lecture# 257)

This is the invitation in the Guide teachings. This is the challenge and the blessing for this unfolding New Year and for every day of our lives... to truly question what it means to see our selves as parts of a living whole; to let go of all automatic assumptions of who we are, and what a meaningful life expects of us; to recognize the seductiveness of dualistic thinking and to choose the courage to surrender to Christ Consciousness... the powerful, ever-present Guidance to living life in accordance with the Law of Brotherhood.

Now, more than ever perhaps, what appears to be chaos and turbulence in the world around us can be the gift within which we, individually and collectively, can rise to the challenge of seeing all aspects of our world, and all factors of our lives, as expressions of a dynamic world of interdependence. In this consciousness we can align with the power of the Source and live our life without trying to protect ourselves against uncertainty by building fences that separate us from our common belonging.

This weekend will be an opportunity to engage with this challenge together; to invite each other to open our “inner eyes and ears and all of our faculties of intuitive perception to soak in the force” ... faculties of Universal Love... “that is here, so that what our mind learns on the level of consciousness can become a vibrant truth,” the force which will allow us to “live and move and have our being in this love and in this truth at all times.” (Lecture # 257)
