You cannot eliminate your fears and your distrust of others unless you constantly renew the practice of total surrender to the highest within yourselves. For you cannot subsist alone. No creature can. All created beings hang together on a chain of interdependence – physically, emotionally and spiritually. When the weight of dependence is put where it belongs – on God, on His personalized aspect who is personally near you – then you can create a healthy center of gravity anchored deep within your soul, for that is where to find Him. His presence merges with your higher self. You truly become one. L258

As we are faced with the latest crisis in our world, as we are feeling the pain of our brothers and sisters who are losing homes and loved ones to an unexpected and unjust war, the Guide reminds us that even at times like this life is offering us a gift.

This gift is the invitation to “expand our field of vision” and let go of dualistic thinking which often has us forget that our happiness and fulfillment can be attained only if we see them as inseparable from the happiness and fulfillment of others; to experience outrage for our collective indifference to life and feel the pain it creates; to allow the longing for justice to fill our hearts; to find the courage to battle for our heart and our deep intention to live in brotherhood; to surrender to deepest Reality.

And to allow this invitation to become a way of life we must remember that the intention to surrender to the highest within ourselves can be achieved only by trusting and depending on the assistance of the personalized aspect of God, which is always near us and which can guide us to creating a healthy center of gravity anchored deep within our soul ... the place where no injustice can exist because it is there that we merge with God.

So let us meet on this weekend and allow our physical, emotional, and spiritual interdependence to guide each one of us to expand our vision and thus support the presence of peace and justice in our world.
