So It's All God's Fault, Right?

Oh how we like to blame God for problems in our life and the lives of others and on the planet! This quote from Pathwork Lecture 29 puts this in perspective.

20	... God does not want you to be a puppet dependent on the wrong concept of divinity that makes you hold on to God's apron strings, expecting Him to run your life for you. Then of course if your life is not what you want it to be, you can blame Him for it in some hidden way. In reality God wants you to be independent and strong, and you can only be that by following the way I am showing you. You can conduct your life satisfactorily, but He will not do it for you. He will let you run your own life, and if it becomes a mess, then it is you who must change, not others or circumstances. However, you can even control circumstances and other people the moment you start allowing your wrong overactive currents to become passive and the wrong passive currents to become active. For those purified currents will emanate from you and indirectly affect the subconscious of other people. And that effect will come back to you gradually, in the form of more truthful and harmonious interactions.
